

SEVERE PENALTY IS DEMANDED FOR DANIELSEN YOUTH

Trial Nears End Today After Testimony of the Defendant

Chicago, April 23.—(AP)—Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington took under advisement today the murder case of Teddy Danielson, 16-year-old confessed mother-slayer. The criminal court justice did not indicate when he would give his decision.

The conclusion of the trial came dramatically, with the youthful defendant, his father at his side, weeping audibly and telling Judge Harrington he was at the mercy of the court.

"Judge Harrington, I want to tell you whatever you do with me will be all right with me," the blond Teddy sobbed. "I want you to know that I love my mother. I don't care what Mr. Meyers (prosecutor) said. If I was in my right mind at that time, I never would have done it."

The elder Danielson broke in and addressed the court and his son: "And your father is here to back it up. Nobody else knows. If you go to the penitentiary, your father and mother will be to blame."

Chicago, April 23.—(AP)—The trial of Theodore Danielson, Jr., neared an end today after climactic testimony by the 16-year-old defendant charged with murdering his crippled mother with a bread-knife.

Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the criminal court will determine the boy's fate after closing arguments by attorneys. The defense waived a jury trial.

Prosecutor Morris Meyers declared today "the law makes no distinction between the ages of 16 and 60" and demanded "severe punishment" for young Danielson.

The assistant state's attorney, charging that the defendant "evaded questions" during his final argument "the only reasonable conclusion is that he first strangled his mother and then as she lay on the floor thrust the knife into her neck."

Declaring "there must be no temporizing of justice," Meyers told the court the youth "is entitled to secondary consideration."

"Debt to Society"

"The welfare of the community must come first. . . . He should be punished. The law makes no distinction between the ages of 16 and 60. Unless this defendant is punished and put in an institution it may have some terrible implications."

Defense Attorney Leonard Reid followed Meyers in presenting his closing arguments.

The defense theory that the youth succumbed to an "irresistible impulse" was supported yesterday by testimony from Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, head of the county behavior clinic.

"He could not resist the impulse to strike his mother with the knife," Dr. Hoffman said. "There was a mental explosion precipitated by the scuffle with the mother. The tragedy was the result of rage which mounted to fury and then mania."

Called "Average Boy"

Young Danielson, described by character witnesses as an "average boy," related how he stabbed his mother to death March 3 when she became enraged on learning he had played hooky from school.

The youth said he had been absent from classes for more than a month, that his truancy bore heavily on his conscience and that he decided finally to confess to his mother.

She was in the kitchen baking a pie, he said, when he told her.

"She grabbed me by the face and shoulders and shook me," he said. "She scratched my face."

"Did you do anything?" asked Judge Harrington.

"I think I must have struck her with the knife."

Off On Honeymoon

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Bearing the blessing of his warrior-father, Francis Warren Pershing left today for a world honeymoon tour with his bride of a day.

Gen. John J. Pershing, 78, but soldierly as ever, headed a list of distinguished guests at the wedding of his only son yesterday to Miss Muriel Bache Richards, granddaughter of Jules S. Bache, financier and art patron.

The bridal couple, after traveling to San Francisco by plane, planned to visit Honolulu, Hong Kong, Java and Bangkok and tour Europe before returning late this summer to New York, where they will make their home.

CLASH IN SYRIA

Beirut, Syria, April 23.—(AP)—Ten persons today were reported killed and many injured in clashes between Christians and Moslems in the Djezirah region of eastern Syria.

Periodic clashes have resulted from demands by Christians that Moslem authorities appointed by Syrian Premier Djemil Mardam be replaced by French officials. (Syria is under French mandate.)

Air Mail

If plans now in the making materialize air mail will be flown from Dixon to Chicago for the first time in history on Thursday, May 19, as a part of the observance of National Air Mail Week. Dr. Grover Moss and Hal Roberts have agreed to pilot a plane from the Dixon airport to Chicago to carry the mail, and Postmaster George Fruin has applied to the Post Office department for a permit for them to handle the mail.

U. S. CHAMBER HITS SPENDING FOR RECOVERY

Business Skeptical Of Pump-Priming As Solution

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce today criticized public spending as a method of stimulating recovery.

"Business sentiment to the extent that it is measurable, becomes more and more skeptical of the new 'pump-priming' program," the chamber said in a formal statement.

The organization also suggested that revision of the labor relations act should be included in any legislative program to combat the recession.

"Business sentiment to the extent that it is measurable, becomes more and more skeptical of the new 'pump-priming' program," the chamber said in a formal statement.

The organization also suggested that revision of the labor relations act should be included in any legislative program to combat the recession.

"Earlier boot strap spending," the statement said, "has produced no lasting benefits. The temporary, artificial fillip it gave to business was at a fearfully high cost. The bill remains unpaid."

"The decision to try another large dose of deficit spending is disappointing to that element of the business community which had hoped for a more fundamental approach to the underlying causes of the depression."

"More public spending, this group contends, is not the proper cure because it does not go to the roots of existing difficulties."

"Business, as represented in the chamber, has consistently advocated a recovery formula which it believes, reached toward the heart of the trouble."

Program Non-Spectacular
Declaring its program was "non-spectacular" and "inexpensive," the chamber said the formula was based on the idea of encouraging private spending and investments in place of public spending and lending.

The chamber reiterated its oft-expressed opinion that business lags because it lacks confidence in certain government policies and purposes.

It contended business was overtaxed and over-regulated and that its fears more regulation and reform.

To modify "these burdens and restraints," business asks "immediate relief from the discredited and repressive undivided profits tax and from the business-stifling capital gains levy," the Chamber said.

"It asks for prompt reduction in social security taxes, with the adoption of a 'pay-as-you-go' plan for old age pensions."

"It asks amendments to the labor relations act to make it less lopsided in its application and administration and it insists that government resist from further intrusion into private employer-employee relations."

Used Cold Cash

Palo Alto, Calif., April 23.—(AP)—The telephone company discovered today why some of its profits had melted away. Stanford fraternity brothers financed their telephone calls with ice nickels.

The impetuous brothers minted the "money" by freezing water in plater molds. Collectors flooded with water instead of coins, threatened to remove telephones from all fraternity houses. The brothers paid—in cash.

Claims Entire Antarctic Continent For U. S. A. by Right of Discovery

Philadelphia, Pa., April 23.—(AP)—The entire Antarctic continent, including the South Pole, was claimed today for the United States by right of discovery in a report made before the American Philosophical Society by Dr. William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan.

Dr. Hobbs declared that the first map of the Antarctic, made by a New England sea captain, was suppressed deliberately by the English government in 1822 and a new one issued to give England priority in the discovery.

The first discovery of the continent was made by Captain Nathaniel Brown Palmer, who served as commander of an American vessel in the war of 1812 as a youth of 18, Dr. Hobbs said.

PARK BOARD HAS MEETING WITH J. ROY WEST TODAY

State Forestry Division Recommends Removal of Gooseberry Bushes

J. Roy West of Chicago, member of the firm of Simonds, West & Blair, landscape architects, is in Dixon today meeting with members of the board of the Dixon park district. The Chicago firm for several years has been retained by the park board in the development and beautification of the parks in Dixon and vicinity.

President Louis Pitcher of the park board announced today that that state forestry division had recommended the destruction of several thousand wild gooseberry bushes in Lowell park this season. The bushes are believed to be the host for a germ which is said to attack white pine. While the forestry division urges the destruction of the bushes, some opposition has developed among members of the park district, who contend that the destruction and removal of thousands of the bushes in the park will destroy both food and shelter for the bird life there.

Conduct Investigation
Architect West and members of the park board were at Lowell Park this afternoon, investigating conditions. In the event that the park board gives consent to the destruction of the bushes workers from the C. C. Camp at Oregon will carry on the eradication program with no expense to the park board.

Architect West also visited the various parks of the Dixon park district and conferred with the architect in charge of the construction of the new armory. Their meeting concerned the landscaping of the grounds surrounding the new state armory building, now nearing completion.

Courtesy Award Is Won by Bob Stacey

This week's award of $5 for careful and courteous driving, given by the Chicago Motor Club and the Evening Telegraph, goes to Bob Stacey, driver of a delivery truck for the Stacey Delivery Service. This truck, bearing Illinois license number A-9909, was observed Tuesday, at 5 minutes after noon, on North Peoria Avenue near the high school, and the driver was exercising special and commendable care in his progress along this crowded thoroughfare. High school students were crowding the sidewalks and dashing across the street regardless of intersections. The truck was proceeding north and the driver cut his speed to a minimum all through this dangerous area and several times came to a stop to avoid the possibility of an accident. The young man used a great deal more care and courtesy than do most young drivers.

The Chicago Motor Club and the Evening Telegraph have been carrying on a twelve week's campaign with the aim of encouraging careful driving. The campaign has two more weeks to run.

Killed Brothers With Rat Poison

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Assistant District Attorney Edmund Rowan said today that Elizabeth Wagner, 22-year-old factory worker, had confessed killing her brothers, Henry, 21, and Charles, 14, by feeding them rat poison.

Rowan said the girl told him after an all-night questioning that she had administered the poison in her brothers' meals over a period of a week. She was charged with homicide and held for arraignment later today in Queens felony court.

The assistant district attorney said Miss Wagner told him she did not know why she gave the poison to her younger brother, but that she was angry at Henry because he shouted at her and once struck her in the face, knocking out two teeth.

Daughters

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The three living daughters of Revolutionary war soldiers sent greetings today to the 47th congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Julian McCurry of Athens, Ga., conveyed messages from the three absent "real" daughters—Mrs. Annie K. Gregory, 94, of Williamsport, Pa.; Mrs. Caroline P. Randall of Springfield, Vt., and Mrs. Mary Pool Newsome of Gibson, Ga., both 88.

Installation of Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., of Annapolis, Md., president-general, and other newly-elected officers closed the business sessions of the congress today.

Mrs. Roosevelt arranged to receive the several thousand visitors at a White House tea this afternoon.

OLD ASSOCIATED PRESS VETERAN AT TESTIMONIAL

Retiring President Being Tendered Final Dinner

New York, April 23.—(AP)—For Charles S. Diehl, 84 years old now and a great newspaperman long before the Maine sank in Havana harbor, this was a day to stir old memories of many a half-forgotten campaign.

From his semi-retirement in San Antonio, Tex., Diehl, assistant general manager of the Associated Press from 1900 to 1912, came to New York for the 38th annual meeting of the modern AP—and more particularly to attend tonight a dinner being given Frank B. Noyes of Washington, AP's veteran president, by his old associates.

He looked about at the visible changes in the mechanics of news-gathering that the march of years has brought and smiled.

"We (the AP founders) didn't have the faintest idea what would come out of that bottle we rubbed," he said.

"But," he added in behalf of the years, "you haven't got any bigger news than we had."

Called "The Colonel"

Sitting erect, his eyes clear behind his spectacles, he talked of Custer's last stand; of the Spanish war and of the 20 AP men "as good men as this world ever saw" who covered it; of the time when three American and three German craft were driven on reefs off Samoa in 1889 and went down horribly.

He said he thought the Samoan disaster had a lot to do with "making" the early AP.

"John Dunning was there," he said—and there was a thing frost on his eye-glasses—"and he sent the most beautiful story I ever read. I thought it was too long at first, but I couldn't put my pencil to it; I couldn't cut it. I broke down and cried. And there were other editors who cried that night."

Diehl called "The Colonel" in the AP, went into the service in 1833. The Colonel promised Robert McLean of Philadelphia, AP vice-president, to "say in ten words" at the Noyes dinner tonight.

"Ten words," he repeated. "They know it'll run a thousand."

Wheat Crop Made Rapid Recovery

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics said today the American winter wheat crop made rapid recovery during the last 10 days from the recent setback caused by early April frost in Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas.

It said, however, that some permanent injury to the crop resulted from the adverse weather.

Rains were still needed in portions of the northern great plains, the bureau said, adding that elsewhere in the west winter wheat generally was reported to be in excellent condition.

The bureau said no new estimate of the size of the crop would be made until next month. Its last estimate was 725,000,000 bushels.

Editor Beaten

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Because he refused to kiss a swastika flag, a crippled editor told police today, four men beat him up in his office last night and scratched Nazi emblems on his chest with sharp sticks dipped in ink.

Hospital physicians said the victim, Dr. Charles Weiss, 31, editor of "Uncle Sam," published by the Anti-Communist, Anti-Fascist, and Anti-Nazi League of Brooklyn, had brain concussion, a possible skull fracture and internal injuries.

DIED IN FLAMES

Danville, Ill., April 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Martha Frances Denny, elderly blind widow, was burned to death last night in her home where she lived alone. Neighbors attracted by smoke found her dead, her bed aflame. Firemen said the blaze evidently started when she fell asleep.

Ordinance Provides for $123,220.20 City Funds $4,890 Less Than 1937

Paving For Lincoln Avenue Adjacent School Planned

The annual appropriation ordinance for the city of Dixon was presented to the council at the regular weekly meeting last evening and filed with City Clerk Wayne C. Smith. It provides a total appropriation of $123,220.20, which is $4,890 less than the 1937 amount, apportioned as follows: public affairs, $41,770; accounts and finances, $7,495; public health and safety, $27,200, which includes $400 to be used in the purchase of a motorcycle for the police department; streets, $13,055.20; public property, $9,600.

Special levies included in the ordinance provided for the following sums: band, $6,000; library, $7,200; garbage removal, $4,900; police pension, $1,000; firemen's pension, $1,000; public benefit, $4,000.

Work on Seventh St.

A resolution providing for the improvement of Seventh street and the paving of one block with cement, at an estimated cost of $3,000, to connect with the Lincoln avenue paving and close a block 346 feet in length, was adopted. The improvement is to be made from the city's motor fuel tax fund.

Another resolution was adopted providing for the paving with cement along the west side of Lincoln avenue from Fourth to Sixth street, at an estimated cost of $3,836, which is to be financed from the public benefit fund. A tile drainage system is also to be constructed in connection with the improvement which will eliminate water standing on Lincoln avenue.

Commissioner Joe E. Valle informed the council that the state highway department had approved of the improvement of East Chamberlain street under the gas tax fund, and it is expected that bids will be advertised for at an early date.

Seven soft drink licenses and one license for the delivery of milk were approved by the council and ordered issued.

FREE LECTURE

The First Church of Christ Scientist of this city today announced a free lecture on Christian Science to be given at the Masonic temple at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening by James G. Rowell, C. S. B., of Kansas City. He is a member of the board of lecturers of the Mother church, the First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, Mass. His subject will be "Christian Science: On Earth, Peace, Good Will Toward Men." All are invited to hear Mr. Rowell.

NO FISHING

Henry Vore of Freeport went to Franklin Grove yesterday to spend the weekend fishing with friends in Franklin creek. Last evening Sheriff Ward Miller was summoned to the village and halted Vore to the county jail, where he remained until noon today, when he started to return home without having enjoyed his fishing trip. Vore was reported to have climbed into an automobile belonging to a citizen of Franklin Grove last evening and the night marshal required assistance in removing him and his baggage to the village lockup, where he was held until the sheriff arrived.

Represents City at Oratorical Contest

Commander William Wood of Dixon post, No. 12, American Legion, and William Slothower, Jr., left this morning for Aurora, where the latter is representing the Dixon high school in the first annual oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion. The district meet is being held today in Aurora and the winner will then enter the state competition at Bloomington, from which meet the state representative will be chosen to compete in the national contest to be staged at Oklahoma City, Okla. In addition to the oration, the subject of which is based upon the Constitution of the United States, each entry in today's contest is required to discuss some issue arising from the Bill of Rights.

Steel Workers Vote On Issue of Wage-Cut as Re-Employment Means

Pittsburgh, April 23.—(AP)—The 700 employees of the Apollo Steel company engage in an unique labor election today to decide whether they will accept a wage cut as a means of re-employment.

The workers heard an equally unique debate last night in which their employer, A. M. Oppenheimer, company president, explained his side of the situation and Harold J. Rutenberg, of the CIO Steel Workers Organizing Committee, talked against accepting a reduction.

Oppenheimer said the Apollo plant, closed since April 1, could have operated at about 35 per cent capacity had wage cuts ranging from 5 cents an hour to a straight

Record

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The war department said today Lieut. Col. Robert Olds had established a new west-to-east record for military planes.

Olds flew from March field, Riverside, Calif., to Langley Field, Hampton, Va., in 10 hours and 45 minutes, landing early this morning.

The non-stop flight was made in the same B-17 Boeing four-engine flying fortress in which Olds led a good-will flight to South America last month.

The war department also announced that on a westward flight April 19 Olds had lowered the east-west record for military planes by one hour. His time was 12 hours and 27 minutes.

WILL CELEBRATE MODERNIZATION OF OLD HIGHWAY

Lincoln Highway Im- provement Committee Meets in Sterling

Plans to celebrate the completion of modernization work on the Lincoln Highway were made at a meeting of the Lincoln Highway Improvement committee at Sterling this week, which was attended by Ralph Hall, Dixon representative of the Chicago Motor club. This organization for several months has been sponsoring a program for the modernization of the original route of the Lincoln Highway from Geneva to the Mississippi river, by eliminating treacherous curves and constructing some new location paving. Several meetings have been held in Dixon in connection with the plan.

The meeting in Sterling was attended by chairman of various sub-committees from the towns along the Lincoln Highway from Chicago to Fulton. The committee was informed by F. Lynden Smith, director of the department of public works and buildings of Illinois, that the state has plans in preparation for the replacement of the old asthmatic macadam pavement just east of Dixon with a high type pavement, and for grading and bridge work on a relocation of the route between Franklin Grove and Rochelle. The new routing would extend east from Breunler's corner, one mile east of Franklin Grove, following a route along the north side of the NorthWestern railroad property to Ashton. Considerable new routing is planned west of Rochelle with a new bridge over Kite creek.

May Invite Horner
The state highway official declared that if the necessary right-of-way were forthcoming, the state expected these two jobs to be placed under contract this coming construction season. Committee members believed that a celebration should be held some time during the fall. It was also suggested that Governor Henry Horner be invited to inspect the work at the dam at the Mississippi river at Lyons as well as the highway improvement.

Appointed on the committee to complete plans for the celebration were: C. M. Burgess and Stewart Cooper, Geneva; Carl Sheldon, George E. Wilbern, Harold Ward and B. A. Gehring, Sterling; Charles E. Miller, Dixon; Samuel Rubin, Rock Falls; Edward Raymond, Jr., DeKalb; George A. Walter and William H. Mitchell, Fulton and J. A. Riordan, Morrison.

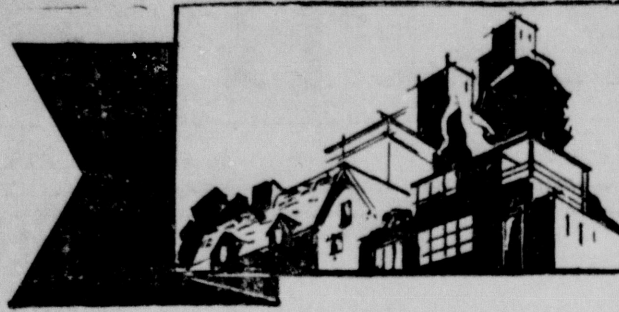

Over-Promotion

Chicago, April 23.—(AP)—Paul Simonsen, 32, did not attend the dance he was promoting because police and others didn't like the way of promoting it.

Policeman Walter Reimer said Simonsen rode a bright red motor scooter through the open doors of a number of stores and taverns and sped through the streets at a dizzy pace while doing his promoting. Simonsen, consequently, was in jail when the dance was held.

Unique Recreation Home

The rustic stone chimney and huge living room bay are the outstanding features of this recreation home. Built of log siding stained dark brown with sash painted white and a green shingled roof the house blends naturally into the setting of a deep woods. Besides the generous living room there is a small bed room, usually large enough for the recreation home, a kitchen and bath. The porch which is ten feet by twenty feet is really an out door living room. A roomy balcony over the bedroom, kitchen and bath is possible with a stairs leading either from the living room or porch.

CAUTION URGED IN WIRING HOME

Three Methods Used By Present-Day Contractors

Fortunately for home owners in urban areas, and also for the insurance companies, electric wiring is usually carefully inspected in new construction work. But in those rural parts of the country where no codes apply, the builder of a house should see to it that he has a complete specification for a first class wiring job and should employ competent supervision to make certain that he gets what is specified.

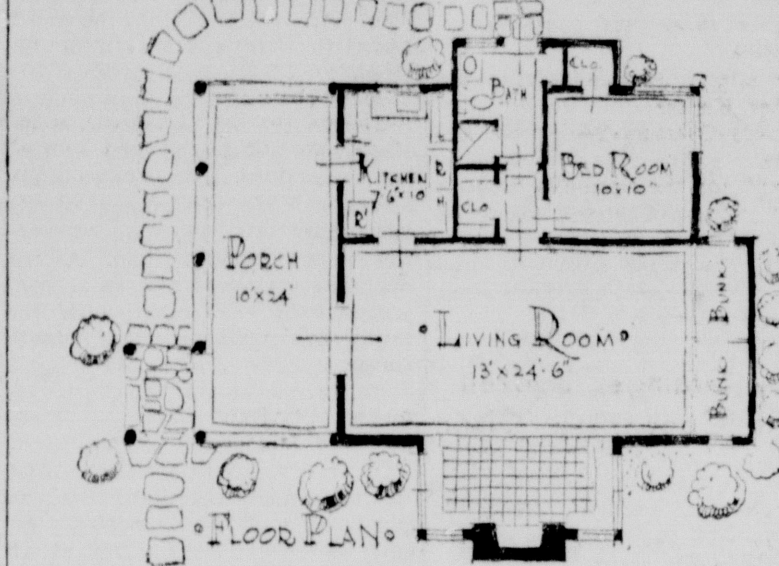

Once the walls are enclosed and the wires concealed, it will be impossible to detect any faults, and the first indication of poor wiring is apt to be the smell of smoke from a fire in the walls or ceiling caused from a short circuit due to careless or improper wiring.

Metal Conduits Best
There are three types of wiring used, namely, knob-and-tube, flexible cable, and wires run in metal conduits. The last is the most complete job and the one where the greatest degree of safety may be expected. The flexible cable is perfectly satisfactory if properly installed, but it should not be used where it will be exposed to dampness unless waterproof cable is used.

The type most useful in present-day construction is an armored cable made of galvanized ferrous metal. The galvanizing is sufficient to protect the metal under normal conditions, but where severe moisture exists it may eventually lose its protective quality and the metal will rust. For instance, such cable should not be used where it will be exposed to the weather, or in a damp, poorly ventilated space under a house where it can not be watched for possible deterioration.

Knob-and-tube properly installed, is satisfactory, but no wire should pass through any wood member without a protecting nonconducting porcelain tube, and all connections should be carefully installed. With good materials properly used, expert labor, and an intelligent lay-out, little or no danger should exist.

Certain varieties of bamboo in some parts of the world produce an applelike fruit, which is baked and eaten by natives.

WALL COVERINGS

Pine, Metal and Linoleum

Lovely effects of a pine sheathed wall in a living room or dining room may be closely simulated by some of the new materials that are less expensive than knotty pine and are said to be much easier to install.

Sheet metal, as thin as paper, is being applied to walls and boards of plastic composition and linoleum, also, are available in a wide range of wall effects. Linoleum wall coverings come in many patterns and are made in imitation designs of walnut and knotty pine boards as well.

It is possible to use the linoleum on the lower part of a wall extending from the baseboard to a wood moulding or chair rail height.

around the entire wall, and then the upper portion covered with wall paper, painted or decorated as one may desire.

OLD FLOORS REJUVENATION

Old, soiled, scratched or cracked floors may be greatly improved at a small cost by covering the old floors with any of the new floor coverings now in the market. This is particularly true of linoleum.

MODERNIZE ELECTRICALLY
Complete modernization of the electric wiring and fixtures should be part of any home modernization plan. Outlets are an important part of home equipment and

Brain Twizzlers

By
PROF. J. D. FLINT

After a meeting of a small town group of business men one day the group adjourned to the back room of the local drugist and ice cream emporium to have a few glasses of sody-pop. The sody-pop cost five cents a glass. There were twenty members of the group and the room had four tables, two on one side and two on the other. Ten men sat on each side of the room, four at one table and six at the other on each side and five at each of the tables on the other side. As was customary, each man bought a round of drinks for his table. When the bill was tallied it was found that although there were the same number of men on each side and each man had bought a round for his table the cost was two dollars and a half for one side of the room and two dollars and sixty cents for the other. How did that happen? If you spot it immediately it seems easy but if you don't it is puzzling.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Stager Becomes Bride of Charles Cecil At Lovely Wedding This Afternoon in Sterling

A wedding of unusual interest in Dixon as well as Sterling was the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Stager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mickle Stager, and Charles Hogg Cecil of Chicago this afternoon at 4 o'clock at "Larchwood," the Stager home on West Third street in Sterling. The event will be long remembered as one of the loveliest weddings within the memory of the guests present, including a number of relatives and friends from Dixon, the girlhood home of the bride's mother, the former Miss Eudora Downing. The marriage vows were accepted by Rev. H. K. Rendall of Morrison, a long-time friend of the bride's parents.

A more appropriate setting than beautiful "Larchwood" for a nuptial event marked by dignity and charm would be difficult to imagine and the perfect harmony of decorations and appointments of exquisite beauty without ostentation was delightfully evidenced in every detail. The place reserved for the ceremony was between the two central east windows of the large reception room, where wrought iron candleabra with seven candles formed the background and tall wrought iron flower stands in front of the windows supported large clusters of Piccadilly gladioli. The staircase rail was draped with satin ribbons and a bouquet of lilies of the valley graced the newel post. Bouquets of pink and yellow roses gracefully carried the decorative scheme throughout the house.

Bride's Gown Ivory Taffeta
The bride was a picture of loveliness as she descended the stately stairs in her dress of ivory taffeta with train, leg o' mutton sleeves, ivory tulle veil and coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Little Miss Joanne Stager, sister of the bride, was winsome in her role of maid of honor, wearing a becoming dusky pink net dress with flower ornaments in her hair and carrying a nosegay of pink roses and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Burnham Hockaday of St. Louis, Mo., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, bringing back to the home the added charm her presence gave it before her own marriage three years ago. Her dress was apple green net with flower ornaments in her hair and she carried pink and yellow snapdragons and pink roses.

Mrs. Olive L. Wolfe of Sharon, Wis., cousin of the bride, led the wedding march from "Lohengrin" on the piano as the bride descended the stairs and met the groom and his best man, Burnham Hockaday of St. Louis, brother-in-law of the bride, where the Rev. Dr. Rendall awaited their coming and where the bride's father gave her in marriage to the fortunate man of her choice. The tall candleabra back of the minister shed a soft glow upon the scene of loveliness as the marriage vows were spoken, and at the close of the ceremony Mrs. Wolfe played the Mendelssohn wedding march, after which the happy couple were showered with felicitations by the assembled guests.

The hospitality that has long distinguished the home was again given gracious expression in the serving of wedding refreshments in keeping with the occasion. Mrs. John M. Stager, as always a charming hostess, wore a becoming dress of French blue lace and organza, her flowers being Dutch iris. The bride's table was the center of interest and admiration, with the bride's cake in the center and crystal candlesticks with white tapers and white gladioli in crystal bowls on either side.

Bride Will Be Missed

Despite the happy occasion and the loveliness of the scene, it was not possible for the friends present to suppress a feeling of regret in the realization that it was the bride's final appearance as a member of the household which her presence has graced during the time since her return from New York to assume a leading place in the social life of Sterling and it was the hope of all present, as it is the hope of all who know her, that her future residence in Evanston will be sufficiently near at hand to permit her to return for frequent visits in her old home and also in Dixon and at the family cottage in Grand Detour.

Mrs. Cecil, aside from the place naturally hers as a descendant of families long prominent in both Sterling and Dixon, has since her high school days been a favorite with her associates and her rare musical and dramatic talents have won her the admiration and gratitude of the public at large by her graciousness in responding to frequent requests to appear in both private and public musical programs. Following her graduation from the Sterling township high school she and her sister, Mrs. Hockaday, spent several years studying music and dramatics in New York, which added the perfection acquired by conscientious study to her unusual talent, and her attractive personality has never failed to add charm to her accomplishments. She carried with her the best wishes of the entire community, in addition to those given expression in the variety and good taste of the souvenirs of her wedding day that she received as bridal gifts.

Mr. Cecil is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Cecil of Hazel Green, Ky. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and has for a number of years been with the Bethlehem Steel company and is now assistant to the Chicago manager of the company as head of the railroad sales department in Chicago. He is remembered by many who met him when he served as an usher at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Burnham Hockaday, since which time he has increased the regard of those who enjoyed meeting him again during visits to Sterling.

Take West Indies Cruise

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil will leave tonight for New Orleans, from where they will sail on a West Indies cruise to Cuba and Honduras, after which they will make their home in Evanston, their temporary address there being the Orrington hotel.

Out of town guests at the wedding included the following: Chicago: Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hennessy, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Blum, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ralph Kerr, Miss Jess Lawrie, Miss Helen James, Kinter Berkebile and George Robinson.

St. Louis, Mo.: Mr. and Mrs. Burnham Hockaday.

Evanston: Mr. and Mrs. William H. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius A. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hillen, Lake Bluff: Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Mandeville, Richard Mandeville, Elburn: Mr. and Mrs. Hicks A. Downing, Hicks A. Downing, Jr., Lancaster, Pa.: Mrs. John A. Goddard II, Mrs. Frank Esheleman, Freeport: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Paul Gasman.

Milwaukee, Wis.: Mr. and Mrs. Leander L. Bassett, Miss Jane Machia. Sharon, Wis.: Mrs. Olive L. Wolfe. Morrison: Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Rendall.

Dixon: Dr. and Mrs. Z. W. Moss, Dr. G. C. Moss, Mrs. E. N. Howell, Amos Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Rogers, Misses Laura and Gracie Rogers, Dr. and Mrs. Earl A. Clevidence, Mrs. R. L. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Kriedler Woods, Mr. and Earl T. Weber, Miss Lucia Dement, Mrs. Ira Lamphier, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Ferguson.

Mrs. Walter Ortgiesen Entertained Her Club

Mrs. Walter Ortgiesen entertained the South Dixon Community Club and two guests, Mrs. Frederick Glessner and Mrs. J. Curran, with a delicious dinner last Wednesday at a local tea room.

After the tempting dinner all returned to her home and after a social hour the meeting was opened by singing a number of songs. Roll call was taken and a short business meeting held.

The meeting adjourned and "Crazy Eight" was enjoyed the remainder of the afternoon. Mrs. Belle Mumford and Mrs. Carl Blum won high and low favors.

Mrs. Amy Wolfram will have charge of the 15 minute program at the next meeting.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments. This brought to a close another very happy day.

Mrs. Carl Blum will entertain the club Tuesday, May 3, in an all-day meeting.

Young Musicians Gave Excellent Concert At High School Last Night

Two groups of very young musicians demonstrated remarkable ability last night at the concert given in the high school auditorium by the Dixon school band and orchestra. For groups so young in music the two organizations gave an excellent concert of instrumental variety.

The school band, recruited from the grades, was featured in the first part of the concert. Orville Westgor, director of the two organizations, put the band through a series of exercises which showed the progress made since the beginning of the school year. The band's program was as follows:

America
Columbine—Waltzes—Kenney
Hill Crest—Overture—Webber-Hornstein

The orchestra with soloists was featured in the second part of the concert. All the soloists, some of them from the high school, gave commendable performances. The program for the orchestra and soloists was as follows:

True Pals, March—Thornton
Berceuse, Jocelyn-Godard, violin solo—Don Emmert

East of Suez, Intermezzo Oriental—Strebore—Orchestra
Bells of St. Marys, Cathedral Chimes solo—Winston Atkins

Minuet L'Arlésienne, Flute solo—Earl Forsberg
Nonette Waltz, Brockton—Orchestra

"Selections—Negro spiritual and Mexican dance—The Dixon school string quintette
Accordion specialty—Billy McNichols

A Jolly Scout, March—Cheyette—Orchestra
The Mighty Deep-Bass tuba solo—Lester Kieffer

Victory—Overture—Taylor—Orchestra
Credit for the splendid progress of the two organizations belongs to Orville Westgor, director.

Today the young musicians competed for honors in the district contest at DeKalb.

Percy Grainger Booked For Concert in Dixon

Percy Grainger, one of the most accomplished modern composers and pianists, has been booked for the 1938-1939 series of concerts which will be presented by the Dixon Concert association. The artist was scheduled in accordance with the preference of association members shown in a vote at the Vanna Bolognini recital on February 3. With the selection of Mr. Grainger, the concert Association has made definite arrangements for two of its three concerts next season.

In an earlier announcement, it was stated that the Vienna Choir Boys, an organization that has been famous for 450 years under the name "Wiener Saengerknaben", will also appear thus giving Dixon foremost attractions on the American concert stage today. The talent for the third concert of the series will not be selected until ticket sales have been completed and the association knows how much money will be available for artists.

Mr. Grainger will come to Dixon with a brilliant reputation obtained through both his compositions, such as "Country Gardens" which is a best seller, and his skillful performances as a pianist.

He is a native of Australia and began his musical career in that country at the early age of ten. By the time he was twelve he had earned enough with concerts to go to Germany for further musical studies. Establishing his home in London in 1901 at the age of 19, Mr. Grainger went on concert tours through England, Australia, South Africa, Holland, Scandinavia, and other European countries.

In 1915, he made his American debut, and became an American citizen in 1918 while serving as a bandsman in the U. S. Army. He married the Swedish painter and pianist, Ella Viola Strom, writing his orchestral "To a Nordic Princess" as a wedding gift to her. Other well known compositions by him are "Molly on the Shore," "Shepherd's Hey" and "Irish Tune from County Kerry."

Tickets for the 1938-1939 series of concerts can be obtained, now at the Ray Miller music store or the Kennedy Music company. As an inducement for the early purchase of tickets, the concert association will admit holders of next year's tickets to the Miller-Vito concert on Friday, April 29 at no extra charge.

BRASS QUARTET TO GIVE CONCERT

The Brass Quartet of North Central college of Naperville is to be heard in a secret concert to be given Sunday evening, April 24 at the Grace Evangelical church at 7:30 p. m. This group has given numerous concerts throughout Illinois and its program will be well worth hearing.

The quartet is composed of two trumpet players and two trombones. This combination produces a very well-balanced harmony. In addition to the instrumental numbers, the program will include several vocal numbers by members of the group.

No admission will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken.

After the meeting adjourned and "Crazy Eight" was enjoyed the remainder of the afternoon. Mrs. Belle Mumford and Mrs. Carl Blum won high and low favors.

THE MORE ABUNDANT LIFE IN FLOWER

Under a Flint Mich., date line comes the following news dispatch:

"The C. I. O. stopped production in two automobile plants and threw nearly 5000 men and women out of work today in a desperate effort to force members to pay dues into the depleted treasury of the waning John L. Lewis organization."

Thus we see the more abundant life in flower. When men are crying for work; when the president is at his wit's end in his desire to halt the onward march of the Roosevelt depression work is stopped at Fisher Body plant No. 1 in order that dues may be collected for the coffers of John L. Lewis, who felt called upon to remind the president that he had contributed half a million dollars to the Roosevelt campaign fund.

The C. I. O. is almost as much an agency of the New Deal as any of the other alphabetical organizations that have been created as a means to the more abundant life. The administration even permitted it to dictate what might be sent by mail into factories where strikes were in progress.

It is one of the things that cause business and industry to fear Roosevelt and fearing Roosevelt is one of the principal activities nowadays.

TO MODERNIZE BANKING LAWS

Justice Floyd E. Thompson is chairman of a constitutional amendment committee, which is advocating an affirmative vote on a proposal to modernize banking restrictions in the Illinois constitution. The matter has been submitted by the general assembly and will be before the voters in November. The committee has been organized to inform the public on points involved.

The proposal is that the state shall follow the national government and eliminate double liability from stockholders of state banks as the federal government has eliminated it from stockholders of national banks.

Double liability, as provided in law, was one of those beautiful theories that failed to live up to representations of advance agents. As long as banks were closed only here and there, the evidence against the legal principle did not accumulate greatly in general or at one time. It was only when banks closed by wholesale that the practical working of the principle became evident. In fact, we found out a lot of things that the public did not generally know.

When banks are organized, the stockholders commonly in fact as in theory are financially able to undertake double liability for their holdings. As time goes on, the financial status of one individual changes. He continues to hold the stock, but the chance of collecting double liability disappears. Another stockholder dies and his stock passes to heirs, who or may not be financially able to pay on double liability. Such natural processes work a gradual but certain change in the banking structure, not impairing the capital stock, but impairing the resources in the provision for double liability.

Beyond that, the conditions that bring about bank disasters also carry down groups of stockholders and render them unable to meet their double liability, and the theory back of such double liability fails in its legal application.

The result is that the assessment is very unequally spread over the persons whom the law designated as doubly liable in the event of the closing of the institution.

We now are far enough from the late bank disaster to appraise the worth and to ascertain the effectiveness of the law in question. It is disclosed in the literature circulated by Justice Thompson's committee that about 16 per cent of the stockholders' liability was collected in Illinois. That was less than 2 cents on the dollar. The comptroller of the currency reports that the amount resulting from stockholders' liability in all national bank failures, in good times and bad, has yielded less than 9 per cent of the total finally available for distribution and expenses of liquidation.

Summarized the situation confronting people of Illinois is this:

1. Whereas stock in good banks once was a prize eagerly sought at a reasonable price, now it is regarded widely as undesirable property, because of the double liability involved.

2. The federal government and other states have removed liability that goes beyond the capital investment by the stockholder, and the result is that Illinois has communities with insufficient banking facilities.

That phase of the situation is set forth by the Thompson literature as follows:

"The minimum capital now required to organize a national bank or a state bank is $50,000. A state bank with $50,000 capital may be organized in any city under 10,000 population, but a national bank of such size cannot be organized in a city of over 6000 population. There are cities in Illinois between 6000 and 10,000 without a bank because $100,000 cannot be raised to organize a national bank. If the added liability were removed from state bank stock, such a community could raise $50,000 and organize a state bank. Investors will not buy stock in a state bank until our banking laws are brought into harmony with those of the nation and of other states."

We believe the foregoing are ample reasons for ratifying the amendment proposed by the Illinois general assembly, but the committee places much stress upon the argument that the double liability no longer is necessary because the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures up to 100 per cent all deposits of $5000 or less, which means that 98 per cent of all bank deposits in Illinois are insured in full.

DIXON VETERAN WRITTEN UP BY EASTERN PAPER

The Gettysburg, Pa., Times of Tuesday, April 19, carried a special front page article which concerned John B. Ford of Dixon, who is making plans to attend the Gettysburg Reunion this summer. Under the heading, "Vet to Return Here to Find House He Visited in Battle," the article reads as follows:

John B. Ford was born in Chester, Pa., April 15, 1844, and attended the normal school at Phoenixville. In 1864, at the age of 20, he enlisted in Company M, Third Pennsylvania heavy artillery and served as an orderly to Captain Fred A. Corty under General Ben Butler. His unit was equipped with two eight-inch howitzers, and two small field pieces and was attached to the Army of the James. It backed up several infantry units. Ford was mustered out of service at Fort Monroe and he was paid off at Philadelphia.

Ford, according to his narrator, relates clearly many of his war experiences.

On one occasion while engaged in the battle of Gettysburg, John Ford left his company to go to an old brick house that had been heavily shelled and where shingles had been blown out of logs, to secure shingles for the floor of his tent and to make a bunk. During his absence his unit went into action, according to his narrator, and when Ford returned, his comrades were gone. Enroute to rejoin his fast moving unit, Ford says that he encountered a swarm of hornets that had been disturbed by Rebel fire, and was unable to locate his unit until after the brief skirmish.

"I'm going back to Gettysburg for the reunion this summer," Ford said recently, "to look for the old brick house." He is an enthusiastic booster of the final reunion of the Blue and Gray here this year. His son, William G. Ford, who conducts a barber shop at Dixon, will accompany his aged father as his attendant.

ment bureaus, and among other things periodically orders large quantities of cement. When the last cement bids were opened, there was every evidence of collusive bidding.

So Morgenthau took the matter to Solicitor General Bob Jackson at the Justice Department, proposing anti-trust prosecution. Jackson agreed, but suggested that they advertise for bids a second time in order to be sure of the evidence.

To this end, Morgenthau talked to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, whose Bureau of Public Roads is the heaviest cement buyer in the Government. But Wallace, who has his eyes on 1940, was not cooperative. He said it was the wrong time to stir business up, and that the Administration should lay off reform.

This got Mr. Morgenthau's dander up and he went to see the President.

"If I can't do the right thing on a moral issue like this," he almost shouted, "there is no place for me in your Administration."

"You're right, Henry," said the President, and signed the paper which his Secretary of the Treasury had shoved before him. (Copyright, 1938, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

(Editor's Note—The Brass Ring is good for one free ride on The Washington Merry-Go-Round, and the prize today goes to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr. This completes the roster of the President and his Cabinet, all of whom have now been Merry-Go-Round free riders.)

WASHINGTON—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., may not go down in history as the greatest Secretary of Treasury since Alexander Hamilton, but he will be known as a faithful, efficient servant who, with a wry face, raised the cash for the greatest spending program in history.

Henry's greatest attribute is loyalty. This is true in his attitude toward his friends—sometimes to his sorrow—but especially so in his attitude toward his Chief, To Roosevelt, Henry is almost supine in his obedience.

Sometimes you catch other Cabinet members in unguarded moments of presidential criticism, but not Henry Morgenthau. His loyalty to Roosevelt is of that blind variety which sees no wrong, and not for one instant would he voice it, even if he did.

Should the President ever oust his Secretary of the Treasury—which probably he never will—Henry would take it in mute silence, like the hound dog which has been wantonly kicked but continues to look with hurt and adoring eyes at his master.

"Let 'em Resign"
During the first years of the New Deal, Henry Morgenthau did little talking in Cabinet, and less arguing at the White House. A very young and inexperienced Cabinet member, he was seen and not heard.

Now, however, Henry is beginning to assert himself. One of these assertions took place only recently in connection with the tax bill, now the subject of much controversy in the House and Senate Conference Committee. In the opinion of Morgenthau, the Senate bill (this subordinate call it the "Berny Baruch" Bill) favors the big speculator and is discriminatory in its treatment of big and little business.

So aroused was Morgenthau over this, and over the sabotage done the President's tax stand by some of his associates, that he went to the White House and urged Roosevelt to mobilize his entire Administration to fight for the House version of the tax bill.

"If I were you, Mr. President," preached young Henry, "I'd call your Cabinet together and say that the Administration has an important issue to go to bat on, and that if anyone is not ready to go out and make speeches on it, he should resign his job."

This is new and unexpected beligerence for the mild Mr. Morgenthau. But on any issue of morals or loyalty he can be forthright and forceful.

Humanitarian Henry

Henry is not what one would call a liberal. He goes along with all of Mr. Roosevelt's policies quite conscientiously (with one exception), but you get the feeling that he is not wildly enthusiastic about some of them. Basically, Henry is a humanitarian. He is conservative in his economic theories, but he has never hesitated where human needs were at stake. Thus he has always gone along with the President on relief appropriations, but when it comes to the larger spending picture, Henry is skittish, if not downright negative.

This is the one exception in which he differs with his chief in the White House—namely, balancing the budget. Henry hates to see the money roll out and not come in. It sends acute pains up and down his financial nerves, and causes positive nausea to the fine sense of monetary house-keeping which Henry inherited from his millionaire father.

The thing that worries Henry, of course, is that he has to find the money for all this spending, and the mere thought of it makes him one of the most jittery men in the Administration.

Efficient Executive

Whatever else he may be called, Henry Morgenthau will be known to future Treasury generations as one of the most efficient administrators it has ever had. He has done a powerful lot of house-cleaning, and it has been all to the good. He has eliminated untold graft in the customs service and speeded up inspection. He has cut out favoritism in the Coast Guard and given it up-to-date equipment. He has abolished politics from the examination of income taxes, and he has inspected the incomes of his own employees, sometimes with startling disclosures.

Henry is so painstaking in his efficiency that it is almost amusing. When he travels, he instructs the railroad a day in advance the exact minute at which his morning orange juice is to be brought to his compartment. And in making appointments he is meticulous to the minute. Seldom does he lag more than five minutes behind with his appointed schedule—which is an achievement for any busy executive.

Perhaps it is because of his efficiency that Henry is not particularly popular. He struggles to please, is thoughtful and kind, but somehow rubs people the wrong way—that is, until you really know him.

While Henry never will be popular, he is getting stronger and growing braver in his job. Just two weeks ago he put across something which illustrates this growth.

BILL STEWART IS MIRACLE MAN UMPIRE

Yanks Don't Appear So Bad Without Joe DiMaggio

When there's a "miracle man" in a baseball scene, he's usually crouched behind a bat, with his master mind buzzing on all cylinders as he maneuvers his men. This year, for the first time in any league, the miracle man in the National league's opening day was wearing the navy blue serge of the umpire. Bill Stewart, National league umpire since 1932, had become a headline hero from coast to coast before the major league pennant races ever turned a wheel.

The umpiring staff of baseball's senior league has long been distinguished for the versatility of its personnel and their prominence in other lines of activity as well as baseball. Stewart, however, touched a new peak of nationwide fame as manager of the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team, newly-crowned world champions of the ice game as the result of their triumph in the National Hockey league's Stanley Cup playoffs.

Ernest C. Quigley, National league supervisor of umpires, has been for 25 years one of the most renowned officials in Intercollegiate football and basketball. He was chairman of the committee to select this nation's representative basketball team in the last Olympic games.

"Uncle Charlie" Moran, one of the senior members of this year's National league umpire in summer during the years when his great gridiron team from Little Centre college became famous from coast to coast, beating a great Harvard team and earning Coach Moran the "miracle man" crown.

Every member of the present National league staff devotes his off-season to distinctive work in some outside field of activity. They attain prominence and honors, but Stewart's achievements during the off-season just closed have eclipsed anything along that line performed by a National league umpire since Moran's famed "Praying Colonels" beat Harvard back in 1921.

Coming just on the eve of the baseball season, the crowning of Stewart as miracle man turned the minds of commentators back to 1914 and the immortal exploit of that year's Boston National league team, tallenders as late in the season as July 19, yet winning through to the pennant and capping this feat by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics for the world championship in four straight games.

Stewart's feat measures well with this standard. His Hawks edged into the lower rim of the playoff brackets. One expert rated them a 50 to 1 shot. But they sailed through the Cup rounds like wildfire. Their title-clinching battle with Toronto was a 4 to 1 decision, leaving no room for argument as to the merits of the fray.

Coming from the edge of nowhere in the Stanley Cup would have been a "miracle man" feat for any man in hockey. For a first-year manager it was a super-miracle. Bill is also the first American-born manager to pilot a hockey team to a National Hockey league championship. Fitchburg, Mass., is his birthplace. Fitchburg is also the birthplace of a great baseball man named Patrick Joseph Moran. In 1915 Moran was a first-year baseball manager and he piloted the Phillies to their first National league pennant.

So when any National league manager discusses some intricate point of baseball with Umpire Stewart this summer, he better weigh his words. "Fitchburg Bill" might try the same trick in baseball he just accomplished in hockey, repeating his own feat and also the feat of "Fitchburg Pat" Moran.

New York, April 23—(AP)—Notes from the sports front: Last man to find out about Joe DiMaggio's signing was pitcher Joe McCarthy. He was out of his hotel at the time, and didn't get the news until hours later. Fred Apostoli's appendicitis may keep him out of the ring till September. The electrolysis associates have a picture of Lou Colvig hanging in their Broadway offices to show folks what "an ugly appearance" at his chest gives a man. . . . Tsk! tsk!

The Cardinals, in crying need of ball-players of all sorts, just released Johnny Cooney, who's only one of the game's best fielding outfielders. . . . And whose lifetime records show he struck out just 38 times in 13 years of big-time batting. . . . Glenn Cunningham is toying with the idea of a South American trip with a touring track team this summer. . . . And if he does what's to prevent a stop-off in dear ole Lunnor for that rumored race with Sydney Wooderson, reported here a couple of weeks back? . . . You ought to listen in on Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Dykes whenever they meet. . . . The way they needle each other has any comedy stopped. . . .

Tab Dutch Mueller, Phils' second sacker up from Houston, as one of the season's rookie finds. . . . A top-off, gals: If you're around Buck McCormick, the Reds' first baseman, and he makes a pass at your scalp, think nothing of it. . . . He collects harpins, because he thinks each one he finds means a base hit. . . . Al Schacht probably won't reach the coast on his clowning around this summer. . . . Jim McMillen, the old footballer, is running for Lake county treasurer in Illinois. . . . Rogers Hornsby likes the Yanks and Cubs for the pennants.

Ross Plans Tactics Against Armstrong

Chicago, April 23—(AP)—The mistake made by the boys who've been licked by Henry Armstrong, Barney Ross said today, is that "they didn't stand up and fight him."

Ross will defend his world's welterweight boxing title against Armstrong May 26 in Long Island bowl, New York. He predicted he would stop the Negro who now holds the world's featherweight crown and is rated as one of the hardest punchers, pound for pound, the ring ever has known.

"I know anyone has to be in shape to beat a fellow like Armstrong and I'll be in the best shape of my life for this one," Ross said. "I don't think Armstrong ever has fought anyone good enough to make him look bad and I'm certain I can do it when we meet."

"I've seen him fight twice and figure that when someone stands up and fights with him he won't look so good."

YANKS-GIANTS WORLD SERIES ALREADY SEEN

Staff Long Known For Versatility Of Personnel

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer
If you have been wondering about that "subway" series that was predicted freely for the 1938 baseball season a week or so before it started, the happenings of the past few days haven't done any serious damage to the prospects.

The Yankees don't really look so bad even though they have lost three of their first five games, and the Giants have a new "big four" hurling corps that appears ready to function smoothly and effectively. The Yanks still need Joe DiMaggio, who is due to report today. But they showed they still have the old power when they walloped Washington, 7 to 0, in their home opening yesterday.

Red Ruffing pitched a game that could have been won without much trouble, giving only four hits. But the Yanks tossed in a little extra when Frank Crosetti made his third hit, a double with the sacks crammed in the eighth.

After having led off with Cliff Melton, Hal Schumacher and Carl Hubbell, the Giants completed their hurling quartet by tossing in Harry Gumbert to spoil an opening day for 31,154 Brooklyn fans. He was in plenty of trouble, giving nine hits and six walks, but the Giants won the game, 3 to 2, their third in four starts.

Double Produces Victory
Doubles by Hank Danning and Dick Bartell, surrounding Joe Moore's single, produced the winning runs in the eighth after the Dodgers had messed up frequent scoring chances.

In spite of the commendable efforts of the New York clubs, the Pittsburgh Pirates remained on top in the National league with their fourth straight victory, and Cleveland and Chicago moved up to make it a four-way tie with Washington and Boston in the American.

A record crowd of 54,500 in the enlarged Briggs stadium saw Cleveland's Indians chalk up a 4 to 3 decision over the Detroit Tigers as Mel Harder pitched a fine game and started the winning rally in the fifth with a double. The chief consolation for the home fans was that Schoolboy Rowe, whose lame arm caused plenty of grief last season, gave up only one hit in five innings after relieving Tommy Bridges.

The White Sox went 13 innings to beat the Browns, 4-3, before 5,644 St. Louis customers. A double by Pitcher Clint Brown, an infield out and Rookie Henry Steinbacher's single produced the winning tally. The Pirates gained a 7 to 4 decision over Cincinnati's Reds, who have been beaten on their last 19 appearances at Forbes field.

Cards Rally in Ninth
The St. Louis Cardinals got four in the ninth to beat the Chicago Cubs, 6-5, and gain their first victory over the Cubs.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Clint Brown, White Sox—Limited Browns to three hits in 5½ innings of relief pitching and won own game by doubling and scoring in 13th.

Pep Young, Pirates—Drove in two runs in 7-4 victory over Reds, hitting two singles.

Red Ruffing and Frank Crosetti, Yankees—Ruffing blanked Senators with four hits; Crosetti made three hits and drove in three runs.

Enos Slaughter, Cardinals—Tripled with bases full in ninth and scored on error to give Cards 6-5 victory over Cubs.

Mel Harder, Indians—Held Tigers to eight hits, fanned five and started winning rally with double.

Harry Gumbert, Giants—Pitched effectively in pinches, although touched for nine hits, to give Giants 3-2 decision over Dodgers.

Chicago Goes On Daylight Saving Time Tonight

Chicago, April 23—(AP)—Residents of Chicago and neighboring communities will trade an hour of sleep tonight for an extra hour of sunlight each evening during the summer.

They'll regain the lost hour of slumber September 25 when clocks will be set back from daylight saving time to Central Standard time.

Suburban trains, banks and the principal markets will operate on daylight saving time during the period.

AT DRAKE RELAYS

Des Moines, Iowa, April 23—(AP)—At least three end possibly five of the country's top-flight quarter-milers will go after Ben Eastman's 46.4 world mark in a special 440-yard race at the Drake relays next Saturday.

Franklin (Pitch) Johnson, relays director, announced today that Wilbur Miller of Compton (Calif.) College, Harold Cagle of the Oklahoma Baptists and Cleve Tate of Oklahoma A. & M. would be matched in the dash. There is a possibility George Halcrow of the University of Chicago, and E. Y. Steekley of Rice may be added.

TENNIS PLAYERS ANTICIPATING 1938 TOURNEY

Two Plans Considered By Telegraph For Pick- ing Champ

Tennis players are on the courts again polishing up their games for the summer season and already inquiries are coming into the Telegraph office concerning the prospects of holding a third annual Telegraph-sponsored city tennis tournament.

A meeting of all players interested in striving for the 1938 city championship will be called in the near future and an arrangement worked out. Two plans are being considered for awarding the title this year:

(1) A ranking or "ladder" system being started early in May and culminated in a tournament comprised of the first top eight players, to be held probably on the Labor Day week end or;

(2) A city tournament of 32 players starting about June 1 and continuing for one month, as in the past. Both plans will be discussed at the meeting which will be announced later.

Champ May Not Return

It was rumored Friday that George Covert, 1937 champion, and Howard Quick, runner-up, will not be in town this summer. In such an eventuality, the championship would again be "thrown to the lions" with anyone capable of taking it, being awarded the honors.

Complaints have been made to the park board who supervise the courts that high school students have been playing softball with hard-heeled, leather-soled shoes on the courts and have attempted to keep tennis players off.

Students are requested to exercise more consideration for tennis players who have a legitimate right to the courts, and do their softball playing elsewhere.

Maroons Bask In Unusual Position

Chicago, April 23—(AP)—The University of Chicago stood out today as big a contender for the Big Ten conference baseball title as any pre-season favorite.

The Maroons gained a place in the title picture after Paul Amundsen's one-hit, 3 to 0 triumph over a veteran Wisconsin team in yesterday's conference opener. Although he walked 10, the Chicago hurler fanned nine as his mates bunched hits of two Badger hurlers.

Illinois' defending champions went 12 innings before conquering Michigan, 10 to 9, while Indiana, runner up last season, fell before Ohio State, 5 to 4, in its conference inaugural.

Arnold Bredewer gave up four hits as Purdue shut out Minnesota, 3 to 0. In the other game, Iowa bunched hits early in the game to defeat Northwestern, 5 to 2.

The teams lined up today for the second game of their series.

Ryder Cup Squad Costs U. S. G. A. $1000 Per Man

New York, April 23—(AP)—It will cost the United States Golf Association about $1,000 per man to send the nine members of its Walker Cup squad over to defend the trophy at St. Andrews, Scotland, June 3-4.

But in spite of that outlay, it's strictly an amateur venture. The association pays the traveling costs and living expenses of Captain Francis Ouimet and the eight players who will accompany him on the jaunt that starts from New York at midnight May 10 and ends June 14. If they want to make any side trips or run up any extraordinary bills, that's their own lookout.

Likewise the players must pay their own $10 entry fees for the British amateur championship in which they all will play. It starts May 23 at Deal.

Olympic Committee Approves Plan For $2,000,000 Stadium

Tokyo, April 23—(AP)—The Olympic organizing committee today approved a plan to build a $2,000,000 main stadium for the 1940 Olympic games.

The structure will be located at Komazawa, a suburb six miles south of Tokyo. The committee decided not to use the famous Meiji Shrine grounds.

Record for most games ever played by one team in one National league season is 160. The Cincinnati Reds of 1915 set that shining mark.

Questions

Fans Are Still Asking
Whys of Deal for
Diz Dean

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer
New York—The mysterious eve-of-season transfer of Dizzy Dean from St. Louis to Chicago brings up questions which have the baseball experts stymied:

Branch Rickey of the Cardinals seldom makes a poor deal. He is one of the best horse-traders in the game. Did Rickey—eager to swap Dean for pitchers Curt Davis and Clyde Shoun, outfielder George Stainback, and $185,000—have reason to believe Dizzy would never be the pitcher he was a few years ago?

Rickey habitually has sold players while they still were good, to obtain top prices for them before the market collapsed under him. Does that explain the Dean deal?

The Cardinals felt they could win the pennant with Dean. The players now feel they have only an outside chance. Did Rickey figure $185,000 and three players was better than a National League pennant or didn't he share the players' optimistic opinions?

Was There A Clash?

There were reports late last season of a bitter flare-up between Dizzy and Manager Frankie Frisch, with Diz saying he wouldn't pitch again for Frisch. Did Dizzy's stand force the trade?

Dizzy has never had a top-notch catcher. Will the aid of a veteran like Gabby Hartnett enable Dizzy again to reach the heights of 1934 and 1935 when he won 30 and 28 games?

Dean is one of the game's most colorful figures. Will he pep up the Cubs?

Dean has been quite a trouble-some character with the Cardinals and a rather forthright guy. How will he fit into the Chicago's scheme, already overcrowded with such master minds as Grimm, Hartnett and Lazzeri?

Dizzy has customarily squawked before signing his contract and has enlivened the spring drills with his popfizzes. This year he signed at a stiff salary reduction, without a murmur and startled the fans by his modesty and silence. Does this add up to anything? Did he know he was to be traded to the Cubs? Was he worried about his arm?

Why Was Frisch Rappy?
Onkie Frankie Frisch was unusually happy this spring, although he had worries what with trying to make a catcher and a third baseman out of outfielders. Was the prospect of a season without arguments with Dean a pleasant one?

New York, Brooklyn and Pittsburgh definitely would have bid against the Cubs for Dean. Why weren't they given a chance?

Bill Terry of the Giants was skeptical of the deal. Why did he say he would have outbid the Cubs for Dean?

The Cardinals need a catcher, but they got no backstop replacement through their trade. Wouldn't a trade with, say, the Giants, which might have brought more money and also a receiver, have been better for the Cardinals?

Will the trade force the Giants to buy another pitcher, probably from the Phillies, to offset the additional pitching strength the Cubs may have acquired? Did the Cards also have another deal in the fire for a new pitcher?

It seems that Father Time alone can answer these puzzlers, and some probably will stump him.

Can Dizzy Win?

The Cubs apparently can count on the pennant—if Dean can win only the average number of games he's won for the Cards during the last six years, 22. The Cubs are overdue anyway. And Dean's expected additional triumphs should help offset the injury jinx that may again pursue the Cubs.

If Dizzy's in shape, it'll surprise everyone if he doesn't win more games than Davis and Shoun combined. And Stainback doesn't figure to help the Cards. But Rickey should have a lot of fun counting that $185,000.

A pretty fair country ball club could be tied together through players the Cards have disposed of.

Consider these:
Pitchers: Dean, Tex Carleton, Paul Derringer, Fred Frankhouse, Bill Hallahan and Leroy Parmelee.

Catchers: Jimmy Wilson, Gus Mancuso, Virgil Davis.
Infielders: Ripper Collins, Leo Durocher, Rogers Hornsby, and Burgess Whitehead.
Outfielder: Gene Moore.

The three 1-hit games in the National league last year were all by western pitchers, Lee Grissom of the Reds, Tex Carleton, of the Cubs, and Ray Harrell, of the Cardinals.

Sails To Obtain Helium For Ship

Berlin, April 23—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener plans to sail for the United States next Thursday to convince Washington officials the helium he has been endeavoring to buy will not be used for military purposes.

"There must be a misunderstanding somewhere," Dr. Eckener said. "I hope to be able to remove any misapprehensions and give satisfactory replies to any questions put to me."

"All military experts are agreed that lighter-than-air craft, even filled with helium, cannot possibly be used for military purposes under conditions obtaining in Europe."

In Washington yesterday Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes said he was hesitant to authorize helium sales to Germany without guarantees the gas would not be used as an "instrument of war."

WEEK-END CRUISE

Washington, April 23—(AP)—President Roosevelt invited Secretary Ickes and Ambassador William C. Bullitt, envoy to France, to leave with him this afternoon on a week-end cruise down the Potomac river. Also invited to board the yacht Potomac were Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator; Mrs. James Roosevelt, the president's daughter-in-law; and Miss Marguerite A. Le Hand, the president's personal secretary.

FOR LARGER AIRPORTS

Washington, April 22—(AP)—Works progress officials said today that enlargement of municipal airports to accommodate larger aircraft may become an important work-relief project.

Airplanes are outgrowing the facilities of many of the country's landing fields, they said. Officials emphasized, however, that WPA would not initiate a program of airfield expansion but would respond to local requests for Federal funds.

FALSE ALARM COSTLY

New York, April 23—(AP)—A false fire alarm in Brooklyn yesterday sent 10 persons to a hospital, including two firemen who may die.

A hook and ladder truck collided with a loaded trolley. The trolley was derailed, the first split in half. Ten ambulance physicians treated 18 injured persons on the scene.

Police do not know who turned in the alarm.

GOOD THOUGHTS

Be noble! And the nobleness that lives!

In other men, sleeping, but never dead,

Will rise in majesty to meet thine own.

—Lowell

If a man be endued with a generous mind, this is the best kind of nobility.

—Plato

Nobleness of character is nothing else than steady love of good and steady scorn of evil.

—Froude

Talent and worth are the only eternal grounds of distinction. To these the Almighty has affixed His everlasting patent of nobility.

—Miss Sedgwick

We must form perfect models in thought and look at them continually, or we shall never carve them out in grand and noble lives.

—Mary Baker Eddy

Get wisdom, get understanding; forget it not; neither decline from the words of my mouth. . . . Exalt her, and she shall promote thee; she shall bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her.

—Proverbs 4

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST

The reading room is open each week day from 2 to 4 p. m. except on holidays. The public is cordially invited to attend.

ST. LUKE'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

B. Norman Burke, Rector

First Sunday after Easter: 8:00 a. m., Holy Communion. 9:30 a. m., Church school. 10:45 a. m., Choral Eucharist and sermon.

St. John 20:19—Read again this Easter evening story. Galilee days are past. Calvary's cross and Golgotha's tomb are empty. The disciples gather in a glad ring about their Risen Lord. He singles no one out, but treats them as one. He says, "ye" not "thou." They are His Body on earth. He gives to this Body His peace and His marching orders. He gives them power through the Holy Spirit. As one, they are to be God's trumpet, sounding the forgiveness of sins. They are not to be eleven (or more) separate "good" men. They are to be sent forth healing—like a Body of living radiance. For forty days the Risen Lord was to be with them "speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom." And then to the work.

The Church today is a living part of that live Body. Let Christ be in the midst. Receive peace. Receive the Holy Spirit. Take His marching orders. Remit men their sins. See to it that men, nearby or far off, are delivered from their burdens—whether self-imposed or imposed by others.

Christ has opened the Kingdom of Heaven.

—Forward, Day by Day.

GARDENS

Foundation Planting Important

Don't overlook the foundation planting and the gardens. They do much to make your home property really attractive and home-like.

Conserve the natural beauty. If the site is well wooded with indigenous underbrush and wild flowers, I would protect these plants as much as possible during the building operations.

If you do not plan your garden at the same time you plan your house, which is after all the logical thing to do, leave the trees and shrubs standing as much as possible during the construction work and then decide what trees need to be cut down and what foliage needs removing. When you construct your garden, you may find that the natural plants lend themselves to your landscape plans and much actual saving in time and money made by utilizing the natural foliage and trees already there.

So go slow in clearing and cleaning up the property.

LOOMIS FAMILY HONORED

You folks who have met the Poultry Tribune gang in my column know that they are a fine, happy bunch. But here you can meet them at their best when they were all present including the members of their families at the farewell party which they sponsored for Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Loomis, Lee and Lorraine.

The festivities last evening began with a dinner served by the American Legion auxiliary in the Legion rooms.

O. A. Kanke as "ringmaster" whipped the program through in fine style to the thorough enjoyment of everyone present.

The evening was enlivened by the sporadic singing of old time popular songs as different groups in various parts of the room would "burst" out with some favorite tune.

Following the dinner those present were entertained with a program consisting of a piano solo by Bryant Zimmerman; Dorothy Watt in one of her graceful dances and a piano solo and a dance by Lois Watt. The voices of Louise Curley and Helen Thomas blended beautifully as they sang several songs.

The program was brought to a merry conclusion by Robert Yoder with his repertoire of legerdemain, which is just another way of saying that Bobby is full of tricks.

But neither the merriest nor the informal social hour which followed was sufficient to hide the regret which the Poultry Tribune force feel in the loss of the Loomis family.

The good wishes of the entire gang, confirmed by a gift of a silver coffee service from the Poultry Tribune company, go with the Loomis family to their new undertaking Mrs. Carroll Boston and Mrs. Josie Brinker were assisted by Mrs. James Watt in making the arrangements. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Ralph Kooper, Melvin Tuttle, Faustina Curley, Gerald Powers, Charles Webster, Leslie Watt, Earl Allen, Harry Yoder, M. C. Small, G. G. Sanderson, O. A. Hanke, J. H. Flores, Winfield Covin, Robert Martin, W. B. Stouffer, J. Watt, and Mesdames Armine Boston, Edna McNett, Josie Brinker, Vee Marcott, Madeline Daugherty, Jessie Lundholm, Mary Alice Clark, Eleanor Wellhausen, and the Misses Dorothy Niman, Vinna Dierdorff, Helen Thomas, Florence Thomas, Louise Curley, Lois Light, Martha Alberts, Runday Delabak, LorEtta Gilbert, Helen Blecker, Fannie Stine, Mae Coddington, Rose Coddington, Grace Weaver, Dorothy Watt, Lois Watt, Betty Allen, Margaret Yoder, Carolyn Flores, Virginia Stouffer, Janet McNett, and Messrs. Harold Davidson, Warren Davidson, Earl McNutt, Roy McNutt, Phillip Watt, Robert Yoder, Buster Yoder, Tommy Small, Jerry Sander-

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The Story So Far:
Judith Goodloe, of an old Maryland family, marries self-made Reuben Oliver for his money—only to discover he is bankrupt. After their twins are born, red-headed Cissy Rogers, who loves Reuben, gets him a job in a lumber camp managed by Gary Brent—the man Judith loves. Reuben is a fighter and trying to live by Judith's codes has weakened him. After a violent quarrel with Judith over Gary Reuben decides to take his own life. This new Reuben is a stranger to Judith, who is in a dream world with Gary.

Chapter 35
Society in a Lumber Camp
And so life ran placidly—a river of gold and enchantment and allure beneath its surface. Romance floated with the tide and Love was waiting to take the helm. Every commonplace happening took on a glory beyond comprehension. To accept a glass of water from Gary's hand. To have him telephone her and say quickly: "You, Judy? I've got to go to the woods—nuisance but I've got to show up on the work occasionally."
"How long are you staying?"
"A couple of centuries—until the day after tomorrow, really. Will you miss me?"
"As if you didn't know!"
Happiness radiated from her. Just to come home hungry, discard riding clothes for cool cotton and sit down to one of Lu Wing's simply arranged, perfect meals! Sometimes a shadow appeared on the golden river of her days—Reuben.

He came home for weeks ends—neither eagerly nor reluctantly—a well-mannered guest who tell in with whatever project was on hand and before he went away asked for the household bills, paid such as he could and laid the rest aside. Gradually the cabin at the top of Winding Hill had become the most popular spot in Camp Site No. 2. People dropped in and found tea was always served at four-fifty to the minute. Served easily and graciously and quite as a matter of routine. They began to stop for pickup dinners on Sunday night or for a chance breakfast after the dance with one of Lu Wing's delicious omelettes. In a small way Judith was dispensing the Goodloe Choice brand of hospitality. Establishing a new social order in the camp at the edge of the forest.

"The beautiful Mrs. Oliver!" People were acutely aware of her. "A Maryland Goodloe, my dear!" One of the officials' wives made the discovery. "A gorgeous creature with the air of princess."
"What about him?—Has she a husband?"—Isn't that handsome young Brent extremely attentive?" Gradually they pieced together a few half truths about Reuben. "One of those freak, romantic marriages—Oliver had millions for a brief while—"
Gossip spread. An ambitious matron with a sub-deb daughter at school in the east was quick to see the advantage of knowing a Maryland Goodloe. "It may mean an invitation to the Bachelors' Cotillion, who knows? We might as well run up to the camp for a while. After all there's nothing really of importance going on in town until November."

One by one the cabins opened. Big cars with chauffeurs smartly uniformed purr up the hill. Ladies perfectly coiffed, groomed and wearing mostly smart black frocks alighted—a case of the mountain coming to Mahomet. Judith accepted her sudden vogue calmly. She sent to Casper Street for her silver, crystal, Cissy's rug—it was superb on the cabin's big, darkly polished floor. She made quantities of tea. Lu Wing baked innumerable tiny wafer-like cakes—
"Are we trying to out rival Newport?" Reuben asked sarcastically.
Ory of Spending
Over the week ends Reuben shared in his wife's popularity—

a reflected glory. He was greeted everywhere with a new cordiality—at the pavilion by the Company's officials on Saturday night, on the golf course on Sunday morning. On Monday morning Reuben became a woodsman again. He tried to remain one over the week ends—declining invitations.

As September, October went by, Judith allowed herself very little thought of the future, as is the way of those happy in the present. The first imperfection that appeared upon her horizon was when Pike belatedly presented his bill. The amount shocked her.

During the first couple of weeks in her new environment, Judith had spent Reuben's money timidly—the horror of jobless days in Fordney's Gulch still upon her. Gradually it lifted. The new order so right, so pleasant, established itself firmly and now—Pike's bill!

"I—I must be wrong," Judith figured, added, subtracted and added again—reminding herself, rather pathetically, of Gran. She could not find one mistake. "I'll do better next month," apologetically—a new attitude for Judith. She handed the rumpled paper to Reuben, "I didn't realize how much I was spending."

He glanced at the amount. Nearly as much as his month's salary. He opened his lips to tell her so. To say that this wild ory of spending must stop. Then he remembered that he had vowed to be as good a man as Gary, and after all, a few pounds of tea, a few eggs was not exactly reckless expenditure.

"Is it necessary to entertain the entire camp every day or so?"
"N—no. Most of them have gone now," Judith said.
"We can be thankful for that."
"I enjoyed having them," frankly.

He folded the bill neatly. "This will have to wait until next month. I paid Cissy—I thought that would please you."

"It does." She had almost forgotten Cissy's existence. "Is she still at Curtis camp?" politely.
"Yes."
"I should think she'd find it dull."

Reuben had a quick vision of the Curtis camp with its ballroom, its motion picture theaters—outdoors and in—its pool, golf links. Guests arriving and departing, lipping down the mountain to Hollywood, to Santa Monica—
"How about asking Cissy down here next week end?" He said it casually, yet it was a command, not a request.
Judith didn't want to ask Cissy next week end or ever. Once Cissy had taken Gary—
"She couldn't do it now," Judith thought with satisfaction. She said, "That's an idea! Shall I mail the invitation or will you take it to her?"
"Either way, I'll probably see her during the week."
He was seeing Cissy—Luckily she didn't care—
Down with a Bang!

Cissy, dressing in Judith's bedroom for the dance given to honor the buyers and their wives, eased a gown over her white shoulders. It was a black gown, filmy and simple with the simplicity of extreme expensiveness. She said: "Nice shack."
Judith agreed: "I'm crazy about it."
"Rube is doing well at his job, isn't he?"
"Evidently." Rube's wife spread cold cream thickly over her straight little nose. "He's had a raise."
"Good!"
"Perhaps he owes that to your interest, Cissy?"
"Not at all! Things are moving better since Rube took a hand," Cissy smoothed her dress over slim hips, "but there's more to it than that."

Judith asked no questions. She kept on spreading cold cream. Cissy, determined to pursue this subject said: "There's a lot more to it than that."

"Than what?" idly.
"My interest." Cissy turned to the mirror: "Galbreath knows a good timberman when he sees one."

"Is he here again?"
"Yes."
"I think I saw him the day I arrived. Fat man with pig eyes isn't he?"
"The eyes are the least of his piglike qualities."
"Is he in this camp?"
"No, across the mountain."
"It's gayer on that side?"
"Much."

For a moment Cissy busied herself pinning down a refractory curl with an invisible pin. This done she said on sudden thought: "Ever notice what a see-saw life is? One side goes way up—flights to stay up—comes down—bang!" Judith laughed gaily: "That's the one thing I have learned about life, Cissy. I've usually had the end seat that gets the hardest bump."

"Guess you have at that," Cissy admitted grudgingly. "I wasn't thinking of you though, but of Gary Brent."
"Gary? What of him?"
"Ha! She's interested at last," Cissy decided. Leisurely she unpinned the curl and worried it with a comb before she answered: "He's had the end up for quite a while. He's due to come down—that's all."
"Just what do you mean?" Judith hoped her voice was steady.
"Galbreath is looking around for a new superintendent."

The news struck Judith like a stone between the eyebrows, stunning her. Then suddenly as a Christmas tree ball shatters, her perfect world smashed about her head. If Galbreath got a new superintendent, Galbreath would go home—go somewhere. Leave her here. Leave her to desolation. She couldn't bear it. She wouldn't believe it.

Monday, Cissy lays her cards on the table.

In the Boer war nearly four times as many British soldiers died of disease as were killed in battle.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

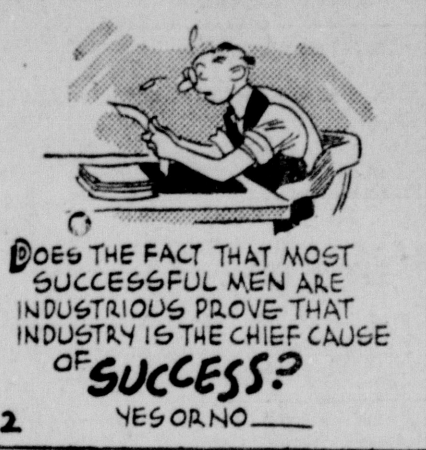

A fascinating pastime with

Albert Edward Wiggam, S. Sc. Author of "THE MARKS OF A CLEAR MIND"

"The keenest anguish known to human nature is the pain of a new idea," (Bagehot). We hope this column brings you pain.

Answer to Question No. 1
1. Not at all, as long as most of the links point in the same direction. For example, nearly all the evidence in favor of the gradual evolution of plants and animals is circumstantial, although, there is not only one "missing link" but thousands. Still the case is overwhelming. Suppose you found a few links of a chain in a field and then down across a ravine found some more, then over the hill still more and so on—all pointing in the same direction; seems to me only a fool would conclude they had not all at one time belonged to one chain. Much scientific "evidence" is like this, but the greatest minds accept it as sufficient proof.
Answer to Question No. 2
2. No, it only indicates it is very important. All studies by vocational counselors tend to show that a man of moderate abilities who is industrious will usually succeed far better than a much abler man who is not industrious.
Answer to Question No. 3
3. I don't take much stock in these large off-hand statements because we know so deplorably little about what does and what does not make heroes or strengthen human characters. What evidence we have indicates that solving problems and meeting situations that call for all our strength, with a pretty sure hope of success ahead and with actual character and that defeat and frustration weaken it, especially if the defeat seems final and we do not have the means—physical, mental, financial, or what not—to go on with the struggle with some hope of still succeeding. At present this is my view. I shall change whenever evidence shows I am wrong.

MARRIES FATHER.
MARRIES SON
Pueblo, Colo. — (AP)—Forty-two years ago Justice Perry C. Dunlap, while justice at Ordway, Colo., recited the civil marriage ritual for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rockwell. A few days ago he performed a similar service for Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Rockwell. The bridegroom is a son of the couple Justice Dunlap married at Ordway.

Amusements

Auditorium Theater, Chicago
Marian Anderson, world renowned negro contralto, will be heard again in Chicago at the Auditorium on the night of Saturday, April 30, her second appearance there this year. Returning to America from France last December 23, she opened her third American tour in Boston January 2, two years, almost to the day, after she appeared on the stage of Town Hall in New York City and claimed the reward for her sublime voice. Now she draws throngs everywhere and her Chicago recitals always are before sold-out houses. Mail orders are being received now by the Auditorium.

Although this country gave her birth, and though she was awarded the prize and privilege to sing at the Lewisohn Stadium with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra when she was only 17, she had to tour two continents in another hemisphere before the United States lent her its undivided attention. It was another case of "local girl makes good." Marian Anderson had to conquer foreign vistas before her "home town" would admit her existence.

From the time America did recognize her genius, however, it pelted her with plaudits and inundated her with engagements. The first spurred her with a dilemma. She has so many demands for her appearances during her transcontinental tour, that time and the human body will not permit her to fulfill them all.

The statuesque artist has outdone Marco Polo. Her first important European recital was in London. Since then she has sung throughout Europe, in South America, Cuba and Mexico and in all parts of the United States. Last winter music-lovers drove 200 miles to hear her at Billings, Mont. The coming Chicago engagement will be the last there until early in 1939.
